20 Candidates File For Primary Poll Involving 10 Posts

Biggest Race To Be For County Commission; 8 Hats In Ring

Twenty petitions for nomination to 10 Pickaway County offices in the May primaries were filed by deadline Wednesday with the board of elections. Four Republican delegates and four alternates along with two Democratic delegates to the state conventions also were placed on file.

The Republican party has been allotted five delegates and five alternates and the Democrats four delegates and four alternates to their conventions. The ratio is based on the number of party votes cast during the Ohio governor's race for office.

Bitter Poll Battle Looms

Lausche-Miller Tiff Heads List

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5—A bitter Democratic battle for the nomination for governor between former Gov. Frank J. Lausche and de facto Cuyahoga County Democratic boss, Ray T. Miller, will highlight the May 4 primary election in Ohio.

Lausche was the last of 40 candidates—19 Republicans and 21 Democrats—to file for nomination before the filing deadline at 6:30 p. m. last night. Miller, his long-time political enemy, filed about three hours earlier.

Two other candidates, Robert S. Cox of Millersburg and Joseph Torok of Youngstown, rounded out the four-man Democratic field, but the nomination will, barring miracles, go to one of the two Clevelanders.

Republican Governor Herbert, a candidate for reelection to a second term, will have token opposition from Albert Edward Payne, Springfield manufacturer-farmer who twice before has sought the nomination unsuccessfully, and William L. White, Newark civil engineer and a political newcomer.

SHARING the spotlight with the Democratic gubernatorial battle will be the bid of Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor, for delegates in 11 Ohio congressional districts and one delegate-at-large to the national Republican convention in Philadelphia in June.

Boldly opposing Ohio's favorite son candidate for the presidency, Sen. Robert A. Taft, Stassen entered delegate candidates in the third, sixth, seventh, ninth, 14th, 16th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22nd districts and one candidate for delegate-at-large, Carrington T. Marshall, of Zanesville, former chief justice of the Ohio supreme court.

Marshall did crack at bossism generally in a two-page statement, but when asked about

The birds who fly south for the winter found it there this year.

One returning robin reports it was so cold that he flew 300 miles beyond the last Republic in before he realized he was in Dixie.

He says it's easy to spot a Republican from the air in an election year... He's the one that's running.

Mr. Truman has made it tougher for the Republicans since it came out that he wrote two telegrams months ago and forgot to send them.

That will bring him the vote of every man who ever was given a letter to mail to his wife's mother and forgot to mail it.

Turk Move Snubs Reds

Ankara Recalls Ambassador

ANKARA, Feb. 5—The forthcoming return to Ankara of Turkey's ambassador in Moscow was regarded in official circles today as a diplomatic rebuke to Soviet Russia for its failure to assign a new ambassador with full powers to this country.

Russia has not been represented by an ambassador plenipotentiary in the Turkish capital for 17 months.

The Turkish government permitted this condition to continue after Soviet Ambassador Serge Vinogradov was recalled to Moscow.

Return of Turkish Ambassador Faik Akdur from Moscow means that the Turkish embassy in the Soviet capital will have the same status as the Russian embassy in Ankara—headed merely by a charge d'affaires or a first secretary.

OBSERVERS pointed out that the Turkish government up to now had not wished to afford Moscow any reason for making a complaint and for this reason had delayed taking any action with regard to Vinogradov's prolonged absence from this country.

Russo-Turkish relations deteriorated steadily since the middle of 1945 when the Soviet initiated unsuccessful moves to gain joint control of the strategic Dardanelles with Turkey.

The Russians sought not only joint administration of the strategic strait but also military bases in the area.

The Turks maintained their determination not to cede anything to Moscow and were strengthened in their stand by the Truman Doctrine proclaimed in March of last year.

Under the doctrine, the U. S. promised financial and military aid to Turkey as part of a campaign to stem the spread of Communism in the Mediterranean area.

Tiberius Area Handed Curfew

JERUSALEM, Feb. 5—A strict curfew was clamped down on the Tiberius area of Northern Palestine by British military authorities today after strong units of parachute troops and Irish guardsmen repulsed a new attempt by Arabs to invade the Holy Land from Syria.

The British troops and Irish forces fought a three-hour battle against the invaders who were forced to withdraw back across the frontier last night.

Conflicting accounts of the fighting said that 12 Arabs were killed, several others wounded and six captured. The radio transmitter of Haganah, defense army of the Jewish Agency, said that only two Arabs were killed and 10 wounded.

Special Council Meet Called On Zoning, Annexation Issues

Circleville city council has been called into a special session for Thursday night by Mayor Thurman I. Miller to reopen discussion of ordinances establishing a city planning commission and for annexation of the county's half of the County Fairgrounds.

During council meeting

Tuesday, Councilman Robert Adkins urged the ordinance on the planning commission be set up as an emergency measure and that an immediate vote be taken.

He emphasized that before any work can be done on a zoning law, it is necessary by statute to have a planning commission. His motion was defeated by Councilman Boyd Horn's negative vote. Councilman Ray Cook was absent and the tally was 5-1.

A planning board already has been established by Mayor Miller, but has no delegated power from council. The plan is for the commission to investigate zoning possibilities to restrict building in the city.

Adkins believes such a law is necessary to prevent "junk yards and filling stations from springing up next to homes."

On the commission are: Mayor Miller, Service Director

UAW Chief Backs Aid Program

More Production In U. S. Urged

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers union, urged Congress today to implement the Marshall Plan with an anti-inflation program and consider the possibility of increasing the proposed amount of aid for Europe.

Reuther told the Senate foreign relations committee that "there is nothing wrong with the American economy, or with the situation in Europe, that cannot be remedied and saved by American production."

The youthful labor leader's endorsement of the European Recovery Program came as Sen. Ball (R) Minn., bluntly warned that the Marshall Plan will be challenged in the Senate on the suspicion that it is "primarily a new British loan dressed up in fancy trimmings."

Reuther lashed out vigorously at what he termed "a creeping Pearl Harbor" in the American economy and urged approval of legislation to break production bottlenecks in the United States. He declared:

"IN MAKING sure that American industry and agriculture may not produce 'too much' later we are held back from producing enough now, enough for our own needs and for the full, prompt implementation of the new European Recovery Plan.

"Today we are suffering from a creeping Pearl Harbor. It seeps through the veins and arteries of our economy. It numbs the nerve centers of our economic and political life, our channels of information. It slows down action by the Congress."

The UAW chief recommended

Some days later, more than 2,000,000 other Germans in the British-American occupation zone quit work for 24 hours for the same reason. Industrial life was brought to a standstill as the men demanded a fairer distribution of supplies by German food officials.

8-Point Plan Outlined To Fight Reds In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Attorney General Tom Clark warned Congress today that the American Communist program "is a cause for concern" and outlined an eight-point program for combatting Communism and other subversive elements.

He stressed that congressional action to strengthen existing laws should be one of the first steps in the nation's fight against Communists.

Clark told the House un-American activities committee, however, that he opposed legislation to outlaw the Communist party in the United States because such action would drive the party underground.

The attorney general's stand on a proposed bill to outlaw the Communist party was identical to that of FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, who testified before the committee last year on the measure. Clark said:

Sonny Boy's Jam-N-Bread Costs 4 Cents

When little Johnny comes home after a hard day at the school and asks for some bread and jam, restrain yourself, mother, and forget the family budget.

Johnny just doesn't realize that every time "Mommy" butters a slice of bread and ladles out a good portion of jam to top it off, she is laying out four cents of the "old man's" hard earned dough.

Here is the way it adds up: The standard loaf of bread in this city, with the exception of the product put out by Circleville's lone home bakery, costs 18 cents. This means eliminating the heels, an even penny is taken out for each slice.

Butter is now 97 cents to $1 in local groceries, and approxi-

KKK Challenged By Ex-Marine

LAKEVIEW, Ga., Feb. 5—A 27-year-old Marine veteran who is athletic coach at Lakeview high school, today challenged the Ku Klux Klan to "shoot it out" after they threatened to "tar and feather" him if he doesn't leave town.

Coach Walter Bowland, a native of Paducah, Ky., disclosed that hooded Klansmen burned a cross in his front yard Jan. 16, apparently to chastise him for disciplining a student from nearby Chattanooga.

GOP Leader Asks Deeper Budget Cut

Wherry Wants To 'Keep Faith'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Sen. Wherry (R) Neb., acting Senate GOP leader, called today for a deeper budget cut than $2.5 billion if the Republicans are going to "keep faith with the people and reduce taxes."

Wherry conceded that the budget cut agreed upon by the joint budget subcommittee was all right as a "floor" but insisted that the GOP must make even greater savings.

He called it a "low target." Last year the House and Senate set respective reduction goals of six and four and the bill failed to achieve either one.

In approving the $2.5 billion cut in President Truman's $39.7 billion fiscal 1949 budget, the House-Senate group carefully emphasized that it was only a "general estimate without too many facts" to back it up.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE recommendation is to be passed upon by the full legislative budget committee tomorrow. Actually, both Democratic and Republican leaders indicated they are not putting much stock in their own figures, but are acting because they are compelled to under present law.

The budget agreement carried with it a proviso that $2.6 billion be applied toward reducing the public debt. It envisioned an ul-

Iran Tells Reds: Row Own Canoe

TEHRAN, Feb. 5—The Iranian cabinet flatly rejected today a Russian note of protest which charged that Iran is permitting the United States to convert the country into an anti-Soviet military base.

In rejecting all points of the Soviet protest, the council of ministers declared sharply that the government of Iran considers the Russian note tantamount to "intervention in the internal affairs of a free country."

The Iranians pointed out that the Tehran government actually was not obliged to answer the Russian note but made a reply "to remove any misunderstanding between the two countries."

Forwarding of the note followed a declaration by United States Ambassador George V. Allen saying that the Russian charge was a misstatement of facts from start to finish.

Voluntary Ration Idea Stressed

Congress Warned Of Possible Crash

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Two efforts to bring down high food prices emerged today when the government moved to set up a new food-saving drive and Sen. Flanders (R) Vt., urged a voluntary meat rationing program.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson is scheduled to meet late today with 18 leaders of the food industry and consumer groups to map plans for the new conservation campaign.

The new drive is to have the inflationary price spiral as its main objective, in contrast to earlier conservation programs which stressed overseas relief needs. Meat prices will be the basic target, but prices of other foods also will be attacked.

Flanders limited his proposal to meat prices. He said he would try to get Congress to underwrite a publicity campaign promoting voluntary meat rationing among inflation-weary housewives.

THE VERMONT senator, who sponsored an unsuccessful attempt to set up compulsory meat rationing machinery, said that he is still convinced that "something should be done about meat prices," and that a voluntary program is the only course left.

The two moves to bring down food prices through voluntary rationing came as the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food prices in 56 large cities shot up 2.1 percent between mid-November and mid-December.

At the same time, President Truman gave Congress a stern warning of another 1929 economic debacle unless it provides powers to bring down prices and control runaway inflation.

The chief executive told a news conference that the spiral of inflation has increased alarmingly even in the few weeks since he asked a special session of Congress to legislate controls on prices and inflation.

Mr. Truman displayed a chart provided by the budget bureau showing the almost perpendicular rise in food, clothing, rent and other prices in the past two months.

The President said with a note of emphasis in his voice:

"THE PRICE situation really is alarming."

He then said that if Congress doesn't provide some way to stop the inflationary spiral it will come to its logical conclusion

Driver Douses Own Truck Fire

Circleville has a serve-yourself fire department.

At least, amazed local smokers Thursday reported that an unidentified out-of-town baker truck driver wheeled up in front of the local fire station, rushed inside, grabbed an extinguisher and proceeded to put out a blaze under the hood of his truck. He left too quickly for firemen to get his name.

Only one fireman was on duty at the time. The rest of the force was putting out another auto fire. They had been called to Beverly road by Lawrence Goeller, owner of the car.

Rayburn Feels Dixie Solons To Halt Threats, Cool Off

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—House Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas backed President Truman today in the dispute which is raging within the Democratic party over civil rights.

Rayburn, who has been mentioned in some quarters as a possible running mate for Truman, predicted that Dixie congressmen who have been threatening to secede from the party will "cool off."

There is nothing yet to indicate that the former House speaker's admonition to his southern colleagues will bear fruit in the near future.

On the contrary, there is every expectation that their anger will soon be heightened because the Republican leadership has decided to push anti-lynching legislation through the House.

Senate Republican leaders are expected to decide soon whether to make an attempt to force the issue over an expected southern filibuster if any "civil rights" bills are called up.

It was reported that the anti-lynching bill might be called up first in the Senate and if the filibuster could be defeated, then the GOP would proceed to take up the House-approved anti-poll tax bill.

Both measures are anathema to southern members, along with Mr. Truman's other recommendations for creation of a federal fair employment prac-

Grains, Stocks Continue Down

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The nation's commodity and security markets went into a fresh tailspin today, following yesterday's sweeping declines. Grains in Chicago yesterday tumbled the permissible daily limits up to 10 cents a bushel and stocks on the New York exchange sustained their worst break in more than nine months.

Initial losses in the grain pits today ranged up to the maximum allowable 10 cents a bushel in wheat and eight cents a bushel in corn, as a flood of selling overwhelmed buyers at the opening call. Limit declines also were registered in soybeans and lard.

Ball gave the first indication that Britain's share of the European Recovery Program would be specifically singled out for attack when the legislation reaches the Senate floor about Feb. 18. He said:

"There will be plenty of debate over the British share and whether it is not in effect a subsidy to the Socialist government's 'cradle to the grave' security program and its nationalization plans."

He noted that Britain would get one billion 750 million dollars of the $6.8 billion for the first 15 months of the program.

300 New Names On Arrest List

NEW DELHI, Feb. 5.—Indian authorities seized an additional 300 Hindu extremist leaders today in a new pre-dawn raid in Bombay, bringing to more than 700 the total of arrests in the government campaign to stamp out violence.

Those arrested in raids carried out throughout Greater Bombay included leaders of the extremist military organization Rashtrya Swayam Sewak Sangh—the RSS and the Hindu Mahasabha.

The government campaign has set off the greatest police roundup in the history of the young Indian dominion.

The seizures were ordered immediately after the government declared the RSS an outlaw organization—an aftermath to the assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Road Unwanted On Sun Porch

AKRON, Feb. 5.—In an effort to prove that "a man's home is his castle," an Akron home-owner has asked an injunction to prevent the widening of Main street which would cut off part of his property.

Gilbert H. Smith, who filed the petition yesterday, claims that expansion of the street, which is to begin shortly to permit the construction of a bridge connecting Akron with Cuyahoga Falls, would engulf his lawn, his sidewalk and a portion of his sun porch.

Smith said the action would deprive him of his property without compensation and would be unconstitutional.

Clark said that he believed the American public "is aroused and that the fight against American Communism is well on its way."

The attorney general emphasized that the Justice department "has prosecuted and will continue to prosecute with vigor the actions of subversive groups."

2. Rep. Cox (D) Ga., predicted the House will pass the anti-lynching bill "as a sop to the Negro vote" and then do nothing more with the President's recommendations.

3. A group of southern senators, including Democratic Whip Hill of Alabama, discussed the President's program at an informal meeting following which Sen. McClellan (D) Ark., said solid Democratic support for Mr. Truman in the South "can't be taken for granted."

timate reduction of $4.8 billion by estimating that Mr. Truman will ask for an additional $2.3 billion in supplemental appropriations not covered in his present budget.

Officially, the subcommittee agreed on an expenditures ceiling of $37.2 billion—$2.5 billion under the 1949 budget. It estimated 1949 receipts at $47.3 billion. It realized this would reflect a surplus of $10 billion.

Democrats in the Senate held off taking any stand on tax reductions pending more information on costs of the Marshall Plan. But Minority Leader Barkley of Ky., following a policy session, said that the chances of any tax cut bill becoming law this year were about "50-50 either way."

Barkley made it clear the Democrats would not vote for the House cut. GOP Senate leaders have made it plain their version will offer a reduction of between four and five billion dollars. Many senators feel that a $4 billion measure could be passed in the Senate over Mr. Truman's expected veto.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5.—The state supreme court has held that benefits from a life insurance policy received in installments, are proceeds of contracts of insurance and thus are exempt from taxation as annuities.

The state tax commissioner held the certificates were taxable as annuities, but the board of tax appeals reversed the finding. The supreme court upheld the board's decision.

Reds Put Ban On Marriages

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—The Supreme Soviet (parliament) of Russia ratified today a decree prohibiting marriages between Soviet citizens and foreigners.

The Russians previously have prohibited any of their citizens who married foreigners from leaving the country to live elsewhere.

It was announced at the same time that Nikolai Mihalovich Rycho, minister of justice, has been relieved of his post because he is "unable to cope with the work." He is succeeded by Konstantin Gorshenin.

Voluntary Ration Idea Stressed

and the U. S. will suffer another crash. Mr. Truman said that Congress knows what is going on. He declared Congress knows as well as he knows what is happening to prices and what the situation is.

He said he is going to keep on telling Congress about the necessity of controlling high prices as long as there is any chance of stopping an economic collapse.

The President especially noted the rise in food prices since he sent his special cost of living message to Congress, which showed on the chart to have topped the rise in all other prices.

BLS announced that on Dec. 15 its retail food price index reached a new high of 206.9 percent of the 1935-39 average. The increase brought the BLS index to two percent above last September, 42 percent above June, 1946, and 12 percent above the post-World War I peak of 1920

WISDOM, IGNORANCE

Homeless Waifs In Paris Show Price Of Last War

By KENNETH L. DIXON
PARIS, Feb. 5.—Men learn to stand a million things in war which they never thought they could.

It is the same when you walk slowly through the scenes of postwar suffering. You tell yourself these things cannot be, that humans cannot undergo these conditions and still survive.

But eventually, common sense triumphs over emotional reactions and you admit these incidents are true and reach some sort of rational state of mind—except for the children.

Now, as in war, it's the kids who get you. . . the homeless, drifting waifs salvaged from the stinking mess of the past decade. . . the kids with ancient faces and childish, undeveloped bodies.

TODAY, through the work of several organizations, chiefly the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Paris has become a sort of clearing-house for these kids—babies, youngsters, adolescents—out of the ravaged, and now often Russian-controlled, zones and into some temporary home.

Eventually, they will go to America, to Palestine, to South Africa and elsewhere around the globe, or else back into their homelands to help with reconstruction.

For three days now, I've watched them by the hundreds, by the thousands.

Some are coming into the reception center, solemnly carrying their bundles containing God only-knows-what, never having to be told to help one another with baggage, or to queue up at meal-time, or to lie down and rest at every opportunity.

Already self-sufficient at ages from four and five and six on upward, they watch you out of eyes as old as the stars, and talk and act like middle-aged men and women.

AT THE reception center, they solemnly clutched postcards given them by officials.

As soon as they had brought in their bundles from the trucks, they sat down in business-like fashion, gripping pencil stubs in scrawny little hands, to write terse, executive-like messages to friends back in Poland.

One, translated from Polish, read:

"Trip fine. Truck very cold, wet, but no trouble. Beds tonight. Food good."

Although officials had done the very best they could, with the supplies available, I wish you could have seen the "beds" and smelled the "food" those babies praised with such business-like enthusiasm.

In the orphan's homes around Paris, conditions are infinitely better, mostly because the government is not involved.

EVEN IN the nursery where the little ones romp and sleep, you soon feel the sensation of deafness from the total silence of two-to-five-year-olds who already associate noise with death.

There is a strange mixture of wisdom and ignorance. Some of the tots speak several languages, audible testimony to their wandering over Central Europe.

A sad-faced 10-year-old boy sat down at the battered piano and played one of the most difficult classical pieces, almost absent-mindedly.

At our applause, he made a stiff bow, but his eyes stared through and beyond us, into places we could not go.

Posted on the bulletin board was some child's lesson in world history. Meticulously, he had written:

"Thomas Edison discovered electricity."

"Madame Curie discovered radium."

"Christopher Columbus discovered the American zone."

Delivery Firm Hit By Fire

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5.—Every active fire company in Columbus, except one, battled flames that nearly destroyed an east side delivery firm's garage and offices early today.

Two platoons of firemen fought the half-million-dollar fire that raged through the half-block-long brick building occupied by the Columbus Retail Merchants Delivery Company.

John J. Chester, secretary for the firm, said that four or five employees were working in the building when the flash fire broke out, but that all were believed to have escaped safely. He said that the fire started in the southeast section of the garage, where employees were preparing trucks for delivery service today.

Do You Have Noisy Neighbors?

A lot of the neighbors were suddenly annoyed by Jeb Crowell's hammering at night. Jeb was building himself a new front porch—and the only time that he could give to it was after sundown.

Finally we decided the best thing to do was all pitch in and help—and get the carpentry over with as soon as possible. We did. Finished the porch next evening—and Jeb gratefully treated us to ice cold beer and cider.

From where I sit, that's what being a good neighbor means. Instead of complaining about the other fellow's habits, try to understand and share his interests.

So if my practicing on the flute annoys you, come on over, neighbor, with your fiddle or guitar and join me! Maybe it will end up in our knowing and appreciating one another better... in an evening of good fellowship. And I'll promise to provide the beer that goes with evenings of good fellowship!

Officials Seek Murder Leads

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5.—Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett and his special investigator, A. E. Keifer, were out of Columbus today, investigating a new lead in the Elmo C. Rice murder of Dec. 10.

Speculation as to their whereabouts centered about Kentucky and Huntington, W. Va., where Columbus Detective Chief Glenn C. Hoffman said yesterday the "number one" suspect in the case was being held.

Huntington police said the man, whose name was kept secret, was not there, but that he might be at Charleston.

Charleston police said they didn't have the mysterious suspect either but that they understood the man's mother planned to get a lunacy warrant to prevent his return to Ohio.

CONCRETE PAVEMENT

for Low-Annual-Cost

The strength and stamina of portland cement concrete pavement enables it to give long years of all-weather service under the heaviest traffic.

For all but the lighter traffic, concrete pavement usually costs less to build than any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

Although the smooth-riding and all-weather safety of concrete generally attracts the heaviest traffic, records show that annual maintenance costs of concrete pavement are generally lower than for other types of paving.

Low first cost, low maintenance expense and long life mean low annual cost—the reason why concrete is the logical pavement for new principal urban highways and streets.

Columbus Mayor Given Rebuke

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5.—Paul J. McCarthy, former president of the Columbus Federation of Labor, was protesting today that Mayor James A. Rhodes figured in his defeat in the race for the newly-created post of executive-secretary.

McCarthy claimed Rhodes influenced certain delegates, so that the union's only salaried position went to Al Vesby by a vote of 57 to 84 last night.

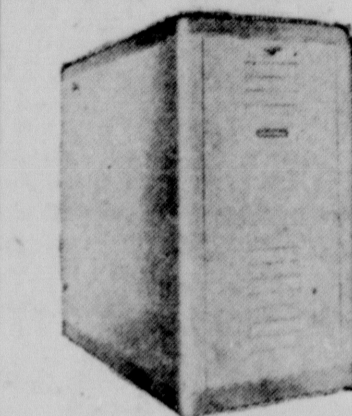

The federation also cast a surprise vote of 53 to 41 against the recently enacted payroll-corporations tax, joining the Columbus CIO council in the battle against the law which comes up for test at a special election June 8.

U. S. Hears Red Power On Increase

Latin Conference Said Sabotaged

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Reports reaching the State department indicate a growth of Communist activities throughout the western hemisphere.

Officials are reluctant, however, to believe that there has been an actual increase of pro-Soviet activity.

They considered the possibility that publicity of the breach between the Western powers and the Soviet Union may have created a sensitivity over Communist activities which did not exist before.

U. S. officials are not writing the reports off as idle gossip in view of the fact that the communists have set as its first goal disruption of the European Recovery Program. Latin-America is expected to play an important part in this program, largely through the supply of raw materials.

MOREOVER, it is planned to write some type of economic program for Latin-America at the forthcoming Bogota conference of inter-American states. Communist activity in the southern part of the hemisphere has been aimed partly at the Bogota meeting.

In this connection, reports published in Colombia newspapers assert that the Russian embassy in Bogota has been linked with a subversive plot by Communists to sabotage the meeting.

This report has not been confirmed by Colombia's foreign office but Foreign Minister Domingo Esguerra said that "when the proper moment arrives, the government will take the proper steps."

While concern appears to be centered on sabotage of the Bogota conference, some sources are more of the opinion that any Communist activity will be aimed at oil production in Colombia and Venezuela. Both countries are important sources for petroleum under the Marshall Plan.

A saxophone-playing plumber of Danville, Illinois, built his own instrument whose 80 pounds and 16-ft. pipe length make his house vibrate when he blows into it.

Special Writ On Buses Set

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5—County school superintendents meeting here yesterday ruled that after

Feb. 10 each school bus making an extra-curricular trip out of the county must carry a certificate authorizing the trip.

The certificates would be signed by the city, county or exempted village superintendent, acting as agent for the local board of education.

City and exempted village superintendents also attended the meeting, at the invitation of the county officials.

Association President J. F. Lautenschlager of Coshocton, will name a nine-member committee to decide whether students paying admissions to athletic contests will be allowed to ride buses carrying the teams. The committee also will draft, within 10 days, an interpretation of the regulations passed.

Federal Bank Sees Farm Output Near Average For Last 5 Years

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5—The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland predicted today that barring weather conditions this year "it seems probable that aggregate farm output may be expected to approximate, if not exceed, the annual average of the last five years."

The optimistic forecast was made in the February issue of the bank's monthly business review in a survey of "food prospects for 1948." The review stated:

"The sustained high level of agricultural production during the past several years represents one of the most propitious developments in American economic and social history."

"It is difficult to visualize the extent to which that series of

Ex-Nazi Chief Is Suicide

NUERNBERG, Feb. 5—German Col. Gen. Johannes von Blaskowitz, commander of Nazi forces which invaded Czechoslovakia and the man who accepted the surrender of Poland, committed suicide today.

Blaskowitz plunged from the top floor of the Nuernberg court prison where he was being held for trial as a war criminal.

Von Blaskowitz was being led up the prison stairs with 14 other defendants. Suddenly he broke away from the others and climbed over a barbed wire barrier guarding a shaft.

Von Blaskowitz then threw himself down the shaft. Taken to a United States military hospital, he died an hour later.

City To Seek Vote On Port

RAVENNA, Feb. 5—Ravenna's controversial airport issue developed a new twist today as the city council took action to seek a referendum on the $50,000 airport bonds which were voted by the people in 1945.

After both advocates and opponents agreed that the question had become a "political football," the council asked Solicitor George G. McClelland to examine procedure necessary to put the question to the people a second time.

The city airport commission, which claims that the $50,000 is insufficient to build an airfield, recently recommended that the council place another $50,000 bond issue on the ballot.

UN Panel Set To Air Debate

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Feb. 5—The United Nations security council is slated to reconvene today to press for some sort of decision in the India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir.

The 11-nation group practically has abandoned hope for a solution through direct talks between the representatives of Pakistan and India, who at present are further apart than ever.

The heavy snowfall cut short the debate yesterday afternoon after U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin submitted a five-point pacification program, including the plebiscite plan.

Home Talent Tops Institute

Home talent and a three-act sea-going comedy, "Uncle Cy On High" will feature the last of Pickaway County's farm institutes for this year, Friday and Saturday at Tarlton.

The two speakers scheduled for the two-day meet are: Mrs. Roy Wipert of Leesburg and Rev. R. Wobus of Sidney.

O. S. Mowery, president of Tarlton farm institute, said Thursday he is expecting one of the "best institutes and a bigger attendance than Tarlton has had for quite some time."

Ex-Con Finding Air Brush Use

LONDON, Feb. 5—A man who learned his art while serving a prison sentence at London prison today was at work with the little-known medium of art—the air brush.

He is William Waite who has painted many well-known Ohioans and is at present associated with a London photographic studio. He did pencil, then pen and ink sketches and later was permitted to use oils while at the prison farm.

Finally, Waite took up the air brush which is a small object resembling a fountain pen and operating somewhat like a spray gun, only on a minute scale. It requires precision to the Nth degree.

Waite explains his art like this: First, he examines a photograph and makes a large pencil sketch; then he shades the work somewhat; next he erases all pencil marks; and finally he takes up the air brush.

CAPITOSAURUS

HOW DID the continents get that way? Take a map of the world, and cut out Africa and South America. See how they fit into each other like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. Experiment will show other sections of different continents which join one another as if they had originally been one.

Perhaps they were. If so, Capitosaurus will tell. This is an extinct sixfoot creature, amphibious like a frog, which Prof. Charles L. Camp of the University of California has just found in a South African fossil bed. If he can find one in South America, it will indicate that in the past the continents either were connected by a land bridge or, more probably, have drifted apart.

An Indiana geologist, Frank B. Taylor of Fort Wayne, advanced this idea of continental drift in 1910. It has become popular among geologists, though they differ as to details or causes. Of late the doctrine is chiefly associated with an Austrian, Prof. Alfred Wegener. His view is that all the land was once one solid piece, surrounded by ocean. Some force on the order of a tidal pull tore large masses off. They drifted away from each other, and are still drifting.

It would be a mistake, however, to hitchhike a ride on a drifting continent, expecting to get anywhere in a lifetime. By comparison a ride on a glacier would be one of breath-taking speed.

WISER WEATHERMAN

THE MILITARY establishment is turning one of its tools against the weather. The Air Force weather service has begun the use of facsimile to transmit weather maps by wire throughout the country. The familiar federal weather bureau maps are made in the individual weather bureau from information transmitted by teletype from Washington. The advantage of facsimile, which transmits a picture by wire, is that time is saved and as a result many more daily maps can be placed at the disposal of the local weather forecaster.

The Air Force is interested in weather for its own ends, as accurate weather reports and forecasts are needed for flying. The new facsimile program will deliver to its weather stations 17 daily maps, prepared in Washington from information gathered by the Air Force, the Navy and the weather bureau. If all these maps prove helpful in gauging the coming of sunshine or rain, then the weather man may find in them a means to better his reputation.

In Italy 160,000 tax collectors have gone on strike. This is one strike which public opinion will probably never insist on being broken.

These Days

The assassination of Gandhi only emphasizes the astounding historic fact that independence must be won, not given. The withdrawal of the British and the partition of India into two states, Hindustan and Pakistan, really solves no problem, for what the peoples of both require is a capacity for self-government, a social revolution and a modern economy.

For these, the people of India are not ready, no matter what American liberals may have to say on the subject. Nor has the high moral quality of Gandhi's personality, his self-sacrifice, and his Tolstoyan negation of material progress altered the outlook of this people who have for so many centuries been held at peace by the force of an external power.

This is no country of one people. Probably nowhere on earth, not even in the United States with its complex of peoples of some 30 nations, but most of them of one major type, do so many different peoples try to live together in one area. Languages are numerous—147 distinct languages grouped under nine differentiated families. These linguistic differences are largely due to the different racial and geographic origin of the various peoples who form the 300,000,000 and more millions of individuals who compose what we lightly call India.

Tagore once said: "India is many countries packed into one geographical receptacle." India remains many countries, each containing many peoples who dislike each other. The British gained their authority by superseding that of the Mongols, the descendants of Genghis Khan who conquered much of the country, following Persian, Arab, Afghan and Turkish conquerors.

Gandhi served India, as Sun Yat-sen served China, as Kemal Pasha served Turkey. But his problem was more complex than theirs, for the varieties of religions, castes and conquests had left to India a legacy of hatred not equaled even in the Balkans. His task was to overcome hatred which had become a political weapon in the hands of native rulers and politicians. Just as Confucius countered the spirit of war by emphasizing peace as a moral idea, so Gandhi made love the pivot of his political system. Nonresistance, in his lifetime, won independence from Great Britain, but it did not lessen the hate of Hindu for Moslem, nor of caste for caste. Gandhi succeeded in the least important of his objectives: He ended Great Britain's tenure; but he did not prepare his people to assume responsibility.

It is not difficult in the hindsight of the Twentieth Century to inveigh against Great Britain's accomplishments in India during the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries. The story from Warren Hastings to Stafford Cripps is a long travail. But this can be said: Great Britain kept the peace; she gave the subcontinent more years of peace continuously than it had ever known before.

It is unfortunate that at such a time as this, India is left without British guidance and without the moral suasion of Gandhi.

You can find the frontiers of most any man's knowledge by going out with him for a good, long walk.

Treating a Type of Anemia Caused By the Loss of Blood

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH tiny—7/25,000 of an inch in diameter—the blood's red cells are among the most remarkable and important of the body's structures. On them our life ultimately depends because they are the carriers of essential oxygen to all the tissues.

Perhaps because they work so hard, the life span of these little cells is short—only about three weeks. Normally they die and are replaced at the rate of about one million daily.

Anemia Exists

When they die off faster than this or form more slowly, their number is deficient for the work they have to do, and the condition known to medicine as anemia exists. It may also be brought about by loss of blood from the body through accident or disease.

Though there are dozens of different factors which operate to bring about anemia, all may be grouped under one of these three groups—loss of blood, excessive destruction of red cells or impaired blood formation. The treatment of anemia, therefore, depends on which of these three basic causes is at the root of the condition.

Due to Blood Loss

In the present article I shall discuss the anemia due to blood loss. Now blood loss may be sudden and massive, as from an injury, or gradual and seeping, as from piles or stomach ulcer. In either case, since there is no disease of the blood involved, red cells are normal in size but their number is definitely below par.

In all cases where there is loss of blood, the first and most important thing to do is to stop the bleeding. If it is due to an injury which tears a large blood vessel, it may be feasible to stop the bleeding by applying a tourniquet. Sometimes, bleeding can only be stopped by operation.

When the bleeding occurs from piles or hemorrhoids, or from an ulcer of the stomach or in the intestine, the important thing again is to make every effort to stop the bleeding. In both of these conditions, the blood must be replaced by a blood transfusion if the amount lost is excessive. If whole blood is not immediately available, then the fluid part of the blood or plasma is injected into a vein, until blood of a proper type is available for transfusion. Plasma is now present and readily available in every hospital in the country.

In addition to stopping the bleeding and giving blood and plasma, it is frequently necessary to give preparations containing iron by mouth, since iron is one of the chief constituents of the blood's red cells. Some of the commoner ones are Bismuth's pills, iron sulfate, and iron gluconate. In some cases, crude liver extracts have also been used effectively.

Proper diet also plays an important role in the treatment of anemia. It should include liver; red meats; vegetables, such as carrots, beets, and spinach; fruits, such as prunes and apricots; eggs; and whole-grain cereals.

The discussion of anemias due to excessive destruction of blood cells, and those due to faulty formation of the blood cells will be taken up at a future date.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

"CATHERINE, come in. We thought you'd never get here. You poor lamb, you must be exhausted."

Francine opened the great blue doors, in shadow beyond the towering pillars of the big white house on a hill among trees a mile and a half north of the village. Catherine followed Francine inside. The wide central hall, running through to similar doors at the back, was warm and bright. There was a long drawing room to the left, but the hall was used as a gathering place by the family. Chairs were arranged at comfortable angles, the lamps were low, there was a fire on the hearth, wood crackled with a cheerful sound, and tongues of flame leaped dancingly against the soot.

Except for Francine the hall was empty. Angela was lying down. Tom and Hat had gone into the village, Tom to post some letters; he had arranged with his office to have his assistant take over for a day or two. Hat was at the local hair-dresser's. Nicky had gone looking for Catherine.

"He got tired of waiting. You must have missed him. Let me have your coat... Here, sit here." Francine pushed a fat chair up beside her, and Catherine sat down. On a table beside it there were sandwiches in a silver basket and a tray holding drinks.

Her own cottage was less than a quarter of a mile away across the fields. Catherine had half thought of having the taxi take her there. But it would be dark and dusty and cold, and depressed and bewildered by the discovery that it was Mike who had removed her leopard, she was glad she hadn't. She wasn't up to effort of any sort.

Mrs. Barker, the wife of the neighboring farmer, had sent two of her daughters over to the big house to clean and cook. The house was never really closed. Tom and Francine often spent week ends here, and there was plenty of food in the freezer, plenty of oil to run the furnace. All that had had to be done to make the place completely habitable was to throw a few switches.

Francine asked Catherine why the inspector had kept her so long and whether there was anything new. Her casual manner was out of register with the intensity of her round brown eyes.

She was shrewd. Feeling uncomfortable as well as guilty, Catherine said, "Just more questions," bit hungrily into the second of two very small sandwiches and wondered why Francine, who had no nerves ordinarily, was on edge.

She urged Catherine to eat, not noticing that the basket was empty, poured her a glass of sherry and swished around the floor in a stunning lounge robe of heavy brown moire that rustled, talking in her clear downright voice.

It was too bad about Mike's money. It would turn up some place. "He made bushes—he must have. He wouldn't have made a will leaving you something if he had nothing to leave. I expect they looked through all his papers for bankbooks and things." Were there hoards of papers? Did Mike have mountains of old stuff like Tom had, or would if she didn't put her foot down?

Catherine said she didn't know but she understood that the search of Mike's apartment had been thorough. "No," she said, "Mike had no other house anywhere where his records would be," not that she was aware of. That was why he had kept the Fifty-ninth Street apartment on, to have something permanent to come back to from his wanderings. He painted all over the map.

"He should have married when he was young," Francine remarked, straightening an old maple-framed hunting print on the wall. "I wonder if he was always in love with Angela? Oh, well, it doesn't matter now."

The suggestion was disagreeable to Catherine. She hadn't cared particularly for her uncle, but Angela and John were devoted to each other and Mike was their friend.

Nicky was a long time away. She had been there almost an hour when he got back. Tom and Hat had the Bentley. Nicky had taken the station wagon. The curtains were drawn, shutting out the snowy twilight, but you could tell the difference in the motors. Nicky came in through the far end of the hall after putting the car away, his face ruddy from the storm.

"Well, here you are," he exclaimed, looking at Catherine. "I went to the Inn and they said you'd gone. I was worried. Boy, some night, the wind's blowing a half gale." He put his hat and coat in the closet under the stair and advanced to the fire.

There was an odd sort of tension in his voice, his manner. Unconsciously Catherine braced herself. Nicky had been so full of plans about Michael's money of what they could do with it, the things they could have, and now...

He surprised her, pleasantly. He was disappointed and showed it. His disappointment was entirely for her. His blue eyes clouded, he said that poor Mike was a muddler but that no doubt the money was somewhere and would be found. If not... "What the heck, Will manage, won't we, sweetheart? Sure, we'll manage." His arm was hard around her shoulders. "I'm going to get a job."

Catherine felt like a worm. Her inability to respond to him, to his nerve and charm, his quick smile, was enraging. Nicky loved her, while she—she was going to learn to love him, she told herself fiercely. There was nothing you couldn't do, if you tried hard enough.

She jumped up, tapping the top of his blond head with her fingertips. "And I'm going to lose a job if I don't get the office."

She got long distance in the little writing room at the front of the hall and was talking to Miss Trenchard in Production, when Hat came into view through the window, walking up the driveway, a scarf over her head, the skirts of her heavier coat swinging. There was no sign of the Bentley or Tom. It was odd to see Hat on foot. She never walked if she could ride.

When Catherine went back to the hall, Hat had come in. She was seated on a footstool in front of the fire displaying her newly done hair to Francine. "Like it? The woman's really rather good; she did it differently at the sides."

She spoke to Catherine obliquely, by indirection, using the third person. "Poor Catherine, first the police persecuting her and now this, about Mike. Manna from heaven and no manna. I think it's a shame."

"Thanks, Hat," Catherine said thinly. "I knew you'd feel for me—especially as money is concerned."

The moment the words were out, she regretted them. It was a break in technique. She hadn't permitted Hat to ruffle her for years. Nicky looked uncomfortable, Francine amused. Hat turned the gold ball of her head, her pansy eyes wide and hurt.

"Oh, but darling, I didn't mean..."

Catherine cut it short. "Sorry," she muttered gracelessly. "I guess I'm tired. I think I'll go and lie down for awhile."

Nicky protested. "Let me mix you a drink, that'll fix you up." But Catherine wouldn't. Climbing the wide shallow stairs wearily, she thought about Stephen Darrell, and about the inspector. Had they left Brookfield together? There had been a distinct suggestion of urgency in McKee's departure. Where was he—and what was he doing?

At that moment, McKee was in New York in a small room on the fourth floor of the police academy across the street from headquarters doing absolutely nothing. He had just suffered a knock-out blow. His elaborate theory lay in pieces around him. Hands thrust into his pockets, shoulders slack, he sat staring at the silver leopard on the deal table in front of him.

A man in a white coat named Binks stood on the other side of the table. Binks said, "We've given it everything we have, Inspector. Quantitative analysis, spectroscopy—it's no go. The thing's solid metal straight through."

The Scotsman had been convinced that there was a hollow space, a cavity, in the statuette, either in the body itself or in the pedestal on which it was mounted, and that the bonds had been hidden in this cavity. It was with this conviction that he had left Brookfield. It would have explained so much, the disappearance of the bonds for so long, Michael Nye's having taken the leopard from Catherine Lister's apartment when he was told that the bonds were missing, and their sudden reappearance, out of nowhere, on the desk in the Fifty-ninth Street apartment where Nye had been killed. Well, apparently he was mistaken. "You're sure, Binks?"

Binks sighed. "Absolutely sure, Inspector."

"I see." It was a dead end. The leopard was a weapon. It was nothing but a weapon... Then why had Michael Nye removed it from Catherine Lister's apartment? The Scotsman pushed his chair back roughly. He didn't get up. Out of the flattened head, the slightest silver eyes gazed at him imperturbably. There was a message in the eyes...

He couldn't read it. He tore his own glance loose, cleared his throat. "Anything on those bonds, Binks?" His voice was harsh.

"Ferrell's working on them, Inspector. He ought to be through. I'll go and see."

Binks went out of the hot little room and closed the door. The clock on the wall said 5:20.

SOME MAKE YOU WORK

SOME DEFENDERS have the habit of always coming in with their winning high cards at the first opportunity, thereby making it easy for you to utilize your own trick winners for maximum results. Others, however, don't ease your path in that way. They like to make you work for whatever you get, knowing that once in a while you will not work in the most efficient way. But which is more fun—getting your good scores through the defender's ineptness or through your own meritorious performance?

One inexperienced declarer got himself set at once by putting in the Q. When the K won, West returned the diamond 2 to the A to set the contract.

In other cases the play went about parallel. The spade A won, then the heart K, A and Q and the club A, K and Q, discarding two spades and a diamond, whereupon the diamond 8 was led. East at all tables except the doctor's came in with the A, making the rest easy after the club J was returned and ruffed. The diamond K and Q furnished discards of North's last spade and club, leaving two trumps for the finish.

Against Dr. Pulver, East played the J on the diamond 8 lead. The Q won. Then a low diamond was ruffed, taking out the A, and the club 6 ruffed in dummy. The diamond K then brought a discard of Dr. Pulver's last spade and he was sure of his contract, giving up a single club to East at the win.

prospective customers mad with love. The boys are all collar ads and the girls are all evident fugitives from Conover and Powers. Driving customers mad, however, is something they try desperately to avoid, because as anyone can see, this is an elegant joint and it is going to be kept that way.

I HAD A LONG TALK ABOUT THIS DILEMMA with a long-legged lovely named Louise Holden, who has been with Astarie since the studio opened and has been graduated from instructor to overseer, or trouble-shooter, and she told me that the average teacher is highly skilled at ducking the customers' passes. "If a girl teacher gets into any kind of amorous jam," she said, "usually, it's her own fault." One of the first things a smart operator does is to establish firmly the teacher-pupil relationship, by always calling the customer by his last name. "Ah, look," Mr. Jones may say, after a couple of lessons,

"why'ncha just call me Al?" The teacher smiles prettily and goes on with the lesson. A few minutes later, in pointing out a fault, she will add, "You see—MISTER Jones?" Miss Holden said that the maintaining of this friendly barrier is one of the teacher's most important jobs.

Astarie spends a good deal of time running the studios, rather than just lending his name. He gave 14 solid weeks of instruction to the teachers before the doors were thrown open.

"We got so used to seeing him poking his head into studios, and ducking around corners like a big kid," Miss Holden said, "that we lost our awe of him." Miss Holden also got to quite a bit of dancing with him—because, although she and the others had lots of teaching experience at other studios, he wanted them to learn his way—and, she declared, he is "magnificent. You just look at his face and you can follow him," she added, dreamily.

I SUPPOSE BY THIS TIME it is no longer news that one does not have to starve in a garret in order to produce art, in varying forms of greatness, but there has been further proof around town recently in the person of Molla, the painter, who in private life is the wife of Radio Producer Herbert Moss.

Until she married Moss a few years back, the dark-haired, demure Molla was living in a scantily-furnished two-room studio in the Fifties. While she was not down to the crackers-and-cheese and dripping-candle stage, she still had something of a time existing. Her work was something less than sensational. Then she tied up with Moss, and next thing, there she was in a nine-room penthouse. It might have been purely coincidental, but it was not any time at all before she had her first one-man show. Another followed and, just recently, the Willard gallery, one of the big showcases in 57th street, concluded a third showing of her work.

The Brooklyn and Milwaukee museums bought her work, more of it went into the celebrated Speyer collection, and even Actor John Garfield purchased some, which surely must be the accolade. This is not a tip to all the young Village artists to desert their creaky and drafty flats, but it is just to reassure them, in a way, that their talent will not desert them, like Arabs folding their tents in the night, the minute they make their first million.

In Molla's case, matter of fact, an influence even more important than a penthouse studio and a relief from financial worry, was the birth of her baby, Ricky.

"The emotional memory of childbirth," she told me, "enabled me to get one layer deeper inside of myself, and made my work broader and better. Friends told me after I had the baby, I really would be through. Actually, I just began."

Circleville chapter, OES, was host to 12 visiting chapters for the silver anniversary program. Assisting were Heber, Kingston and Evergreen chapters. Approximately 200 persons attended the daylong ceremonies.

The morning session was under the direction of the district president, Mrs. Lelia Pontius, of Evergreen chapter. The flag was presented by Kathryn Caldwell, and was followed by the assembly singing "Star Spangled Banner". Altar service was in charge of Mrs. Robert Goodchild, worthy grand matron of the local order. Prayer was offered by Hazel Hohenstein.

Welcoming address was voiced by Miss Carmean, of Heber chapter, with response by Dorothy Giebelhouse. Roll call and business was followed by a memorial service in charge of the Purity chapter.

Miss Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, installed the following new officers: Miss Carmean, president; Mrs. Gertrude Smith of Bloomingburg, vice-president; Mrs. Mary Ervin of Jeffersonville, secretary; and Mrs. Hazel Hohenstein, of Kingston, treasurer.

At the noon hour the group was invited to the temple dining-room for a luncheon. Places were marked in the beautifully decorated room with silver and white flowers. In observance of the 25th anniversary, all appointments carried the predominating silver theme. Gifts and corsages were given distinguished guests and district officers.

Mrs. Charles Smith was general chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. W. B. Cady and Mrs. Clarence Thorne and their respective committee members.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, district grand matron of the Kingston order, opened the afternoon session and presented Mrs. Zella Watkins, state worthy grand matron, who presided over the school of instruction, with explanation of ritualistic work by the Circleville chapter. Mrs. David Pontius of Adelphi and Mrs. Bennett assisted in the demonstrations.

Several grand officers were present including past grand matron, Miss Hamilton. Among the guests were persons from Washington C. H., Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville, Chillicothe, Waverly, New Holland, Adelphi, Williamsport, Kingston and Frankfort. Next year's session will be conducted in Washington C. H.

Too Much Gas Stalls Autos

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5—For the first time in a long while in Cleveland, cars were forced off the road last night because of too much gasoline.

The gas, however, was not in the automobiles, but spread over several hundred feet of pavement.

The gas escaped from a punctured trailer-tank containing 4,000 gallons. Only a few hundred gallons poured out, however. Traffic was halted 90 minutes while firemen flushed the streets to prevent danger of a fire.

4 Auto License Deputies Set For Pickaway

Deputy registrars were assigned Thursday to issue Ohio's 1948 automobile license plates which will depart from dull blues, grays and whites for a new look of black numerals on a lemon yellow background.

State Motor Vehicle Registrar Edward T. Fogo said that the new plates will go on sale March 1 and must be displayed by April 1.

Under a new law passed by the legislature last Spring, licenses for all passenger cars will be sold at a flat rate of $10.

In Pickaway County, tags may be purchased from: Mrs. Ruth E. Wignell, 118 East Franklin street, Circleville, auto and truck plates; Mrs. D. H. Marcy, Williamsport, auto; L. E. Foreman, Ashville, auto; and Annabelle Echard, New Holland, auto.

Oil Production At All Time High But Your Help Still Needed

WILL YOU HAVE ENOUGH FUEL OIL AND KEROSENE to last out the winter? The answer to that depends in large part on you.

Here is the problem that must be faced by every fuel oil user. Over a million new oil burners are using 2,500,000,000 more gallons than in 1941. The over-all demand for oil products has increased by 20 billion gallons over the biggest pre-war year.

Oil is being asked to do more all the time. The petroleum industry is working around the clock to meet your demands...to rush crude oil to refineries then on to you. Over 4 billion dollars are being spent to find new sources of supply, expand refinery facilities and provide faster methods of transportation. But, as in many industries, this expansion program of the Oil Industry is seriously hampered by a shortage of materials. Only time can correct this situation.

Meanwhile, every fuel oil user should do everything possible to stretch the available supply. If everyone saves...there will be enough for all. The greater your cooperation now—the surer you will be of an adequate supply for the rest of this winter.

4 ways you can help save fuel oil... and money, too!

1. Keep temperature at moderate level—not more than 68 degrees. Turn thermostat to 60 or below at night.
2. Keep doors, windows closed, shades drawn. Close off unused rooms.
3. Install storm windows and insulation to keep heat in...cold out.
4. Have your heating system checked to be sure you're getting the most efficient use of your fuel oil.

If everyone saves...there will be enough for all

Special Council Called

Joseph Rooney and John Heiskell, president of the board of Ted Lewis park commissioners. These three are set up by statute to be commission members.

Four non-partisan citizens represented on the committee are: George Young, an attorney; James Yost, hardware dealer; Lawrence Curi, an engineer; and Russell Imler, a clerk.

Adkins declares "there is no danger of the planning commission running the show" since council must first pass on any of its suggestions.

The city will make an effort to push through the annexation law Thursday so it will be in force prior to the county basketball tournament, one councilman believed. Should the motion become a ruling, the city would benefit by several hundred dollars from amusement taxes at the tournament alone, he said.

If passed, the city will take possession of the county's half of the Fairgrounds and a part of the John Robinson property. Another advantage proposed in the annexation movement would be a unified police and maintenance force at the Fairgrounds.

Kay Francis Leaves Clinic

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5 — Kay Francis, veteran actress of the stage and screen, left this city behind today—and probably without regrets.

Taking unusual precautions to conceal her departure from the public, the star left White Cross hospital late yesterday. She had been confined there since Jan. 23, when she was suddenly stricken ill and thereby touched off a police investigation that disclosed nothing untoward.

Although she did not reveal her plans when she left her downtown hotel shortly afterwards, Miss Francis was believed to have gone to New York.

Two Injured

ELYRIA, Feb. 5—Two workers were injured in an explosion and fire at the General Industries Company plant here shortly before last midnight. All city fire companies were called to fight the flames.

One of the injured men was tentatively identified as Gale Wolf. Cause of the fire, which firemen battled for several hours, was not immediately determined.

The building is one of Lorain County's largest single plants. Damage is expected to mount above the $50,000 mark.

A bold attempt to accomplish by legal decree what Mohandas K. Gandhi was unable to do by appeals and prayer was undertaken by the government of India today. It was the outlawry of violence and the abolition of private armies.

The first organization to be affected was an extreme Hindu Nationalist group known as the RSS, which was held directly responsible for the assassination of Gandhi and was declared an illegal band throughout all the states and provinces of the Indian dominion.

Many reforms have been achieved in recent decades. But India still swarms with descendants of self-styled "holy men" of the sect known as "Thugs"—an ancient Indian name whose modern connection is, of course, entirely familiar.

The origins of the "Thugs" can be traced back to the 14th century when some misguided genius—authorities differ as to whether he was a Moslem or a Hindu—thought up the idea.

DETAILS of their almost incredible operations throughout the centuries came to public notice in 1828 when a British governor-general of India, Sir William Bentinck, became appalled by the situation and started a seven-year campaign to eliminate them.

The "Thugs" had made a practice of disguising themselves as wealthy travelers and worming their way into the confidence of merchants in caravans.

Experienced by their own wanderings and well-spoken they were able to insinuate themselves into the confidence of victims.

The "Thugs" official name for themselves was "Phansigars," which means "noise operators." They worshiped the Hindu goddess of destruction and in their rites were strict in observance to the ultimate degree.

But they were inordinately superstitious. It was against their rules to assassinate women, water-carriers, lepers, musicians, poets, blacksmiths and carpenters—plus anyone who was in the company of a cow, regarded as a sacred beast.

"Thugs" as such exist no longer in India today. But Gandhi's assassination itself is proof that violence has not been eliminated by any means, and the government of Pandit Nehru is determined to do so if it is humanly possible.

Abe Lincoln was born on February 12, 1809. Most of us who cry about our lack of opportunities have already ignored more opportunities than Honest Abe ever had. His schooling was a catch-as-catch-can affair. . . but what he caught he held onto. He grew up in poverty in the backwoods of the United States. Yet, in spite of his handicaps, he was able to say "With malice toward none, with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right." Perhaps the greatest lesson we can draw from Abe Lincoln on the anniversary of his birth is tolerance for each other's shortcomings.

A Baltimore man who failed to return a library book titled, "Practical Course in Modern Locksmithing," was found in jail on a burglary charge. Guess the course wasn't too practical. # 15 Countians To Attend Young Farmers' Conference

Walnut Lads Lead Local Delegation

Group Studying Conservation

Two delegates and 13 members of the Walnut township Young Farmer Association will attend a statewide conference of young farmers Friday and Saturday on the Ohio State university campus.

Walnut is one of 36 YFA groups scheduled to be represented during the two-day series of conferences on agriculture and agricultural education.

Kenneth Holtrey, advisor for the Walnut township group, said Thursday that Weimer Perrill and Everett Beers of Ashville had been named as delegates to the conference.

Others planning to attend are James Moody, Jay Hay, Jeff Cline, Wright Noecker, Phillip Thomas, Bob Courtwright, Grover Dresbach, Dick Jones, Bill Courtwright, Charles Bartholomew, Roger Bowers, Robert Cromley and Holtrey.

PERRILL and Beers will participate in the program on discussions of "Initiating and Developing a YFA Program" which will be led by Dr. C. E. Rhoad.

The YFA organization is made up of Ohio farmers 16 to 25 years old. Of the 35 members in Holtrey's group, five townships are represented. They are: Walnut, Madison and parts of Amanda, and Circleville townships.

Officers of the Walnut group are: Harold Hines, president; Jay Hay vice-president; and Boyd Fausnaugh, secretary-treasurer.

Five committees of the Walnut YFA have set up goals to achieve during the coming year. The conservation committee will try to get 10 farms in the local community to register under the conservation program.

They plan to promote several pasture experiments using lime, fertilizer and feed.

The feeding committee wants more efficient feeding of grain, while members of the swine group are looking forward to increased interest in Ohio pork production and production registry programs and to make this section of Ohio an outstanding pork center.

GOALS of the dairy committee are: Continue to increase ar-
